About Infant Massage

Infant massage is a parent education program based on family strengths that promotes the physical and emotional well-being of babies and young children. Infant massage has many positive benefits that can help encourage secure attachment, bonding and communication between parent and baby and facilitate long term positive emotional development.

As a CEIM you help parents use nurturing touch to feel closer to their babies, reduce baby's colic and fussing, and become healthier and happier.

About the Course

This comprehensive four-day course prepares you to guide parents and caregivers to massage their infants and children.

Our 15-point curriculum, designed by Vimala McClure, author of Infant Massage a Handbook for Loving Parents, will give you the knowledge base, experience and confidence you will need to fulfill your role as an educator. During the three parent-baby classes which are part of the training, you will get practical experience teaching.

Certification Process

To earn your Certified Educator of infant Massage (CEIM) status, you need to:

- ☞ Attend the four-day certification training
- ☞ Complete and submit the exam and practicum in the weeks following the training

The 4-day course plus completion of the exam and practicum qualify for 52 CE Hours for nurses, 56 CE Hours for massage therapist and Child Life Specialists, 5 CE Units for Occupational Therapists
